Honourable James Chabot
Provincial Secretary and Minister of Government Services
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Mr. Chabot:

On behalf of the Board of Directors
it is my pleasure to submit the sixth
Annual Report of the British Columbia
Heritage Trust, for the year ending
March 31, 1984.

Respectfully submitted,

Michael Young
Chairman

The logo for the British Columbia Heritage Trust. It features the words "BRITISH COLUMBIA" in a small, sans-serif font above the word "Heritage" in a large, elegant, cursive script. Below "Heritage" is the word "Trust" in a similar cursive script, but smaller. The entire logo is enclosed within a thin rectangular border.

Chairman's Message

I am pleased to present the Annual Report of the British Columbia Heritage Trust for the 1983/84 fiscal year. The conservation and preservation of our heritage nurtures an understanding and appreciation of the past in British Columbia, and give us a better perspective on building for our future.

The British Columbia Heritage Trust was established under the Heritage Conservation Act of 1977. This statute empowers the Trust to distribute grants and provide other incentives to encourage heritage conservation. It must be recognized that pressures of development and the passage of time, together with the economic climate, threaten archaeological sites, heritage buildings and other heritage assets. We must accept that we cannot, nor should we try to, protect every site or structure. Rather, we should encourage knowledge and appreciation of our unique heritage.

Some highlights of the past year are:

- The Student Employment Program, now in its second year, yielded exceptionally good results and will be continued in 1984/85. The combination of hardworking students and enthusiastic community groups is providing an important foundation for heritage at the local level.
- The new Conference Program assisted with the development of seminars, lectures or workshops that examine various aspects of British Columbia heritage.

- The Religious Buildings Program gave a significant impetus towards the restoration of the province's churches, temples and synagogues.
- A program for archaeological sites and interpretation was established.

This annual report indicates the grants awarded by the British Columbia Heritage Trust; it is important to note that the original source of Trust endowment is the B.C. Lottery Fund.

The Trust encourages donations in the form of cash and selected property; tax receipts can be issued for donations. The donation from C.P. Rail of Business Car 19 is a much appreciated asset and will complement the collection of rail cars at the Cranbrook Museum and Archives. In addition, the Trust this year received an anonymous cash donation of $10,000 for which we are most grateful.

As the Trust completes its sixth year, we are receiving many demands on limited resources. The directors have had to make difficult decisions on a number of applications for assistance. One recent policy which will affect many groups deals with the moving of heritage buildings. The directors, after due consideration, agreed that no funds can be awarded for the moving or the restoration of relocated heritage buildings away from their historical context. Although in the past the Trust has reluctantly assisted, this new policy will be effective for this and future fiscal years.

The Trust directors can look back on the past year and see the tangible results of the projects assisted by the Trust. The Board of Directors changed with the new appointment of Joanne Monaghan, a businesswoman and alderman from Kitimat. Dr. Mitchell, Professor of Anthropology at the University of Victoria, was appointed a full board member where previously he was an ex-officio member.

As Chairman, I must acknowledge with considerable gratitude the dedication and commitment of Trust staff. It is a pleasure to work closely with them and share their enthusiasm.

The Trust is now a familiar feature throughout the province, and recognized as a major heritage agency across Canada. It is my hope that we can continue to provide innovative leadership and assistance in encouraging heritage conservation.

Michael Young
Chairman

Minister's Message

Familiarity with our heritage gives us a better feeling of what we are and where we have come from and provides a sense of continuity for our efforts and our accomplishments as a society.

As Minister responsible, I am pleased with the success the B.C. Heritage Trust has enjoyed in raising general public awareness of the importance of heritage and in assisting communities throughout the province in restoring, preserving and interpreting a wide variety of heritage projects.

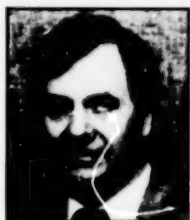

I congratulate the directors of the Trust and staff for the work they have done this past year and I wish them continued success in the years to come.

Introduction

The role of the British Columbia Heritage Trust, as established under the British Columbia Heritage Conservation Act of 1977, is to support, encourage and facilitate the conservation, maintenance and restoration of heritage property in the province. The Trust achieves this objective primarily by providing grants to local community groups. The impetus for these projects usually originates in the community. Though the Trust's assistance is vital, it is community commitment of time, energy, enthusiasm and labour that ensures successful completion of a project.

There is no simple definition of heritage. Each community must examine for itself its history and decide what are its important surviving heritage features. Examples of heritage resources in B.C. range from prehistoric archaeological sites to art deco gas stations, from early churches and town halls to log cabins. Any community embarking upon a heritage conservation program must be able to cover the ongoing costs after the completion of the restoration or excavation. In addition, they must ensure that the general public can learn what they have done.

The Board of Directors meets regularly throughout the year to consider applications in various program areas. The Trust attempts to understand the concerns of each community and whenever possible holds meetings in the various areas of the province. During the 1983/84 fiscal year the Trust met in Chilliwack,

Prince Rupert, Vernon, Oak Bay, North Vancouver and Langley. The Trust welcomed the opportunity to meet with municipal councils and heritage groups to discuss the issues pertinent to each community. In Chilliwack discussion focussed on the Old City Hall building and the restoration of the Mercer Barn. The Trust meeting in Prince Rupert focussed on the proposed heritage area revitalization for the downtown. In Vernon the Trust met to discuss the need for a heritage inventory and encouraged the Council to appoint a Heritage Advisory Committee. To this end, the Trust approved funds to assist with holding a heritage awareness seminar in Vernon. This meeting included a visit to the Trust's own property, Hat Creek House, where approximately 100 people toured the site and saw the restoration in progress. In Oak Bay the directors discussed the work required on the Tod House and the inventory work to be completed in Oak Bay. In North Vancouver the Trust visited St. Paul's Church to view the restoration and then had the opportunity to meet with heritage representatives and discuss details of the soon to be completed heritage inventory. The Langley meeting offered the opportunity to view the Fort Langley CN Station, discuss the inventory and visit the original fort site at Derby where excavation had been conducted.

Over the year the Trust has been gratified to see the work being done at the community level. It is this dedication that will help in the preservation of our past. The cooperation among provincial organizations, community groups, municipal councils and regional districts is to be commended. It is this unique cooperation that ensures a cohesive approach to heritage conservation in the province.

During 1983/ 84, the Trust awarded 136 grants in the following categories:

Additional Activities 13

The Trust is primarily a granting agency offering financial assistance to local government bodies and heritage societies. It also initiates a variety of related projects reflecting its role.

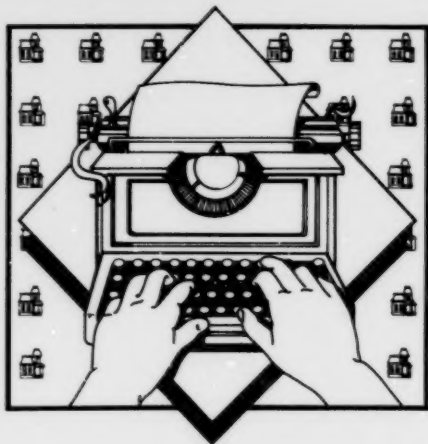

This year in its technical papers series the Trust published Fire Prevention in Heritage Buildings and a revised Heritage Conservation Bibliography. All papers in the series are available at a nominal charge from the Trust office. In addition, the Trust continued to increase public awareness of heritage in general with information pamphlets, posters, films and slide presentations. The Trust also developed a new travelling display that will be available to community groups throughout the province.

The Student Employment Program provided about forty-five students with employment in the field of heritage conservation. Through this program heritage groups and municipalities throughout B.C. were able to undertake innovative projects.

This year the Trust received the donation of Business Car 19 from C.P. Rail. This 1928 business car will be on display at the Cranbrook Archives and Museum, and is a valuable addition to the railway collection. In these times of economic restraint, the Board of Directors is encouraging cash donations to the Trust fund. With financial assistance from people throughout the province and increasing interest in our heritage, we can ensure the preservation of our legacy for the enjoyment of future generations.

We welcome visitors to Trust offices in Victoria. Several officials from various parts of the world visited over the past year. Dr. Kate Sutcliffe, State Archaeologist from Queensland, Australia; Dr. Bruce McFadgen from New Zealand Historic Places Trust; Mr. David Rice of the Countryside Commission for Scotland; and many other colleagues visited during the American Association for State and Local History conference. We enjoy the exchange of information and ideas on programs throughout the world that parallel the work of the Trust.

Publications Assistance

The Trust supports the publication of material pertaining to the heritage of the province. These publications should seek to improve public awareness of British Columbia's urban and rural heritage, promote its preservation, or provide information for laypersons and professionals in conservation techniques.

Funds are not intended for research purposes, but rather for actual publishing costs. The publication must be at the manuscript stage and applicants other than publishing companies should have completed arrangements for publication and distribution.

Projects eligible for support must fall within the following categories:

- local and regional histories
- thematic monographs
- special issues of periodicals
- technical handbooks
- oral histories

Planning and Inventory

This program is intended to assist municipalities, villages, towns and regional districts with preliminary or comprehensive surveys of heritage buildings, and historic and prehistoric sites. The first step in any heritage conservation program is to identify the nature and extent of the heritage resources to be conserved. Without such identification a realistic heritage conservation program cannot be implemented.

Before beginning any survey work, it is important to ask for what purpose the data will be used. Without a clearly defined set of goals and objectives, the possibility always exists of collecting data which is not very useful, while ignoring that which is.

Thus the purpose of survey and inventory may be defined broadly as the examination of the total heritage resources within a defined program area and the identification of significant physical resources which may, after intensive analysis, prove to be of heritage importance to the area.

The results of survey and inventory form the basis for making sound judgements in heritage planning.

Scholarships

The British Columbia Heritage Trust Scholarship Program offers a $7,500 award annually in each of the following fields: British Columbia Archaeology, British Columbia Architecture, British Columbia History or Archival Management. Heritage-related studies in these fields will also be considered. Each scholarship is dedicated to the memory of an outstanding British Columbian who, in his own field, contributed greatly to the understanding and conservation of this province's unique heritage.

Charles Borden has rightfully been called the "Father of British Columbia Archaeology." In 1949 Dr. Borden initiated an academic program in archaeology at the University of British Columbia. Working extensively in the southwestern corner of the province, Dr. Borden's research established a sequence of human occupation extending over 12,000 years.

Peter Cotton was a gifted restoration architect and a leader in his field. Mr. Cotton's restoration projects included Richard Carr House, Craigflower Manor and the exterior of Victoria's St. Andrew's Cathedral, among others. British Columbia owes a great deal to this pioneer of heritage restoration.

Willard Ireland was well known for his popularization of provincial history. As a writer and a teacher, Dr. Ireland's contributions to the identification, interpretation and preservation of historic resources of British Columbia are incomparable.

The maximum grant is $50,000; maintenance and operating costs will not be funded under this program. It should be noted that in the new fiscal year the Trust will not assist financially with the moving or restoration of relocated heritage buildings.

I have examined the balance sheet of the British Columbia Heritage Trust as at 31 March 1984 and the statements of revenue and expenditure and changes in financial position for the year then ended. My examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as I considered necessary in the circumstances.

In my opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Trust as at 31 March 1984 and the results of its operations and the changes in its financial position for the year then ended in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Heritage Area Revitalization

Through this program the British Columbia Heritage Trust assists communities with the restoration of well defined networks of streets which are normally accessible to the public. Buildings which were important in the early development of these communities, and which have significant visual impact, are a necessary part of this type of restoration. The Trust is prepared to commit funding for projects of up to three years duration and requires that matching funds be committed. Municipal councils and regional district boards normally administer the program and are accountable for grants awarded by the Trust.

When proposals are submitted, it is essential that applicants demonstrate support from the community at large; this could include the local business community, the heritage advisory committee and the Community Arts Council.

Trust monies may be used for:

- planning and research
- design services of specialists, such as architects and engineers required for each project
- restoration and cleaning of historic building facades, monuments and signs
- interpretation, placement of plaques, kiosks

and other features which assist in the appreciation of the area's heritage value

- alterations to facades of other buildings so as to maintain a consistent theme within the heritage area.

Capital Projects

Grist Mill, Keremeos

Built in 1876, the Keremeos Grist Mill is thought to be one of the first water-powered flour mills in British Columbia. Over the past year problems with bank erosion caused considerable concern. With advice from Fisheries and Water Management, restoration work commenced on the creek bank. A request for bids for the construction of the wheel and flume proceeded.

The South Similkameen Museum Society continues to play a major role in this restoration. The society coordinated the work of a student who offered tours of the site and conducted further research on the mill. The site is open to visitors from June to September.

Hat Creek Ranch

This historic site located near Cache Creek served as a hotel between 1887 and 1901. The plans for the site are to restore the exterior of the buildings for self-guided tours. Interpretation of the development of ranching is planned in future years.

Over the past year dendrochronology was carried out on the McLean Cabin. This work indicated that this log cabin was built in 1863. The same process will be carried out on the roadhouse and the other structures on the property. The Hat Creek House Restoration Society undertook restoration work on the blacksmith shop. Further work is planned to bring this building to the point of display as a blacksmith shop. This site is not open to the public except by special arrangement.

Application Procedures

Applications for grants from the British Columbia Heritage Trust may be made at any time. Some programs require the use of application forms, whereas for others application is by letter. All applications, with the exception of the publications and scholarship programs, should be submitted by the local governing council. The Trust will, however, consider applications from heritage groups or societies provided they have the endorsement of the local government council.

The British Columbia Heritage Trust is assisted in its work by staff of the Heritage Conservation Branch. The Director of the Heritage Conservation Branch acts as Secretary to the Trust. All enquiries should be addressed to the British Columbia Heritage Trust, but may then be referred to the Branch to provide technical assistance in the following areas: architecture, archaeology, planning and establishing a heritage conservation program. Branch staff may be in contact with applicants for further information prior to submission of applications to the Board of Directors. Formal applications to the Trust are taken forward to the Board of Directors meetings by the Secretary/ Director of the Heritage Conservation Branch and the Program Manager of the Trust.
